Petition of Judge Ritchie Presented to the Supreme Court.

HEARING SET FOR FRIDAY

IN THE MEANTIME THE CANVAS-SING IS SUSPENDED.

Wants to Hold Office Until 1901-Alleges the Election Is Null and of County Clerk Stanton Petitions For Writ of Habeas Corpus, Which Will Also Be Heard by the Supreme Court on Friday.

As foreshadowed in The Herald of Saturday a petition by Judge M. L. Ritchie for an injunction to prevent the board of canvassers from canvassing the votes cast at the recent election and issuing certificates to the successful candidates, was presented to the state supreme court yesterday and temporary injunction issued returnations. able next Friday.

The title of the suit is M. L. Ritchie vs. Morgan Richards, state auditor, James Chipman, state treasurer and A. C. Bishop attorney-general, assuming to act as a board of state can-judicial district to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Hon. Le

Then the petition goes on to state that the act entitled "An act relating to making sundry pravisions concerning elections" by authority of which the election was held and the board of state canvassers assume to carry the election was held and the board of state canvassers assume to canvass the vote is invalid and never became an act of the legislature or the law of the state of Utah for the reason that the said pretended act was not passed by a yea and may vote, but on the contrary there was a disagreement between the two houses of the legislature as to the terms of the bill and the same was referred to a conference comwas referred to a conference com-mittee; that when the conference com-mittee reported to the house of repre-sentatives, they reported certain amendments created and agreed to by the committee, but instead of passing the bill after such amendments were added, the house of representatives, on a viva voce motion, concurred in the conference committee's amendments, all of which is found on the house of representatives journal.

NOT LEGALLY ENACTED. The petitioner further contends that the act of the legislature authorizing the election was never legally enacted by the two houses of the legislature, and never became a law. The governor, when the bill was sent to him for his signature, suggested certain. signature, suggested certain amendments and returns it unsigned to the senate, where the amendments were adopted and the bill passed and sent to the house. It is alleged the house simply concurred in the amendments, but failed to pass the bill as a whole when amended.

EMBLEMS ILLEGAL.

The ballot, it is alleged, was further illegal because by the enactment it was provided that it should be lawful to designate the political party or nominating committee by which each list of candidates is nominated by an appropriate emblem, and that by placing a cross mark opposite such design list of candidates is nominated by an appropriate emblem, and that by placing a cross mark opposite such device certain candidates should be considered as voted for, whether the voter had himself selected said candidates of his choice or not. The provision, it is stated, was enforced, and hallots were counted by the county and other canvassing boards for persons whose names were assumed to be upon the ticket and for whom no voter had actually voted by making a cross mark opposite his name or by in any manner selecting him as the candidate of his choice, and that the said provision for emblems is illegal and unconstitutional in that it does not provide a uniform method of voting, but gives preference to those whose names may happen to be upon such regular ticket.

It is then stated that Judge Street was appointed to succeed Judge Hitchie succeeded Judge Young, and that it is claimed that A. N. Cherry and A. G. Norrell received a majority of the bailois cast at the election, and that the board of canvassers threaten to issue certificates of election to Cherry and Norrell and will issue such certificates not withstanding the alleged illegality of the election unless restraining order is prayed for, and it is alleged that the election being void the petitioner is entitled to hold his office until January, 1901, and that no legal election can take place place until November, 1900.

A temporary restraining order was issued and made returnable on Friday next, December II, at 10 a. m., when arguments will be made on the petition.

CANVASSERS ENJOINED John M. Zane are the attorneys for the INJUNCTION SERVED. The board of canvassers met at noon and organized with A. C. Bishop as chalrman and Secretary of State Hammond as secretary ex-efficio. The board then took a recess until 2 o'clock, at which hour the injunction was served, which put a stop to all proceedings for the present.

JNUDGE STREET SAYS NO. He Will Have Nothing to Do With the Contest.

Judge Street having been mentioned in the petition of Judge Ritchie, for an injunction, the former, believing that the office should go to the person receiving the largest number of votes and wishing to wash his hands of the whole business, forwarded a letter to the board of canvassers stating that he would not contest the validity of the election or oppose the issuance of the certificate to the person entitled after Jan. 1 under the election to the place Judge Street now holds as one of the judges of the third judicial district.

STANTON'S HABEAS CORPUS. Writ Issued and Made Returnable

Friday Next. A petition for a writ of habeas corput was filed on behalf of County Clerk Stanton yesterday by Messrs. Brown, Loofbourow and Zane in the supreme

The petitioner sets out that on or about May 20, 1895, he was appointed by the governor of the state of Utah to the office of one of the three judges of the district court of the Third cate of election to E. W. Wilson, elected undied of the court of the Third cate of election to E. W. In the petition it is alleged that the petitioner is unlawfully restrained of

NOT PASSED BY YEA AND NAY up as in the petition of Judge Ritchle against the board of state canvassers.

A funny scene was enacted in the corridor of the Knutsford a few even-ings ago. Billy Ridd, the irrepressible lings ago. Billy Ridd, the irrepressible traveling passenger agent of the Rio Grande Western, was as usual, rustling for business. He struck a party of six people who were going east and wanted to get them for his line. He wasn't without opposition, however, for there are other passenger men in the city and they wanted the party just as badly.

Billy got in on the party first though and he didn't propose to let the other fellows get a chance to exploit the merits of their lines if he could help it before he got them ticketed.

After talking himself blind he discovered an inclination still in the minds of some of them to investigate the istories they had heard about the beauties of the Overland Route, the advantages of the Missouri Pacific, etc., and though he was not especially particular as to what line they adopted in contraction with the Western attil

It is further contended that the pretended enactment does not conform to the requirements of the constitution which provides that no bill shall be passed containing more than one subject which shall be clearly expressed in its title.

NOT A SECRET BALLOT.

It is further set up that under the said pretended act the election was held by what is known as the Australian ballot system and that by the terms of the act the ballot of each voter was required to be numbered and that the judges of election were required to take the ballot of each voter was required to be numbered and that the judges of election were required to take the ballot of each voter was required to be numbered and that the judges of election were required to take the ballot of each voter was required to be numbered and that the judges of election were required to take the ballot of each voter and number it in ink in one corner go as not to expose or show how the done a service and "put him on. Then he introduced the man who knew a heap better how to twist the tail of an unruly bullock than he dld how to handle a passenger, to the people as the general manager of his road.

Then was when the scene amusing. "We would regard the privilege of carrying you over our line as an esteemed favor," began the livestock confidence man while Billy chuckled inwardly. "And if there is anything that I can do for you which my passenger agent has not felt he had the discretion to offer I would deem it a favor if you will inform me," he continued. wanted the Yellow Thanksgiving iron band that he wore to keep from bursting after eating turkey and he wanted it for the same purpose, to keep from bursting, he controlled his risabilities he controlled his risabilities and chipped in with "I suppose Mr. —, there would be no objection to my instructing our Denver agent to meet them at the station at Denver with them at the station at Denver with transfer wagons and carriages to transfer them to the other line?"

"No, indeed, I was about to suggest that and if there is any other attention you can show just go ahead and use your own discretion."

Billy got the business and ticketed the party but—came near spoiling it all by forgetting himself. His confederate's second nature got the better of him and he handed one of the party his card. "If you'r shipping any stock," he started, when Billy interrupted to explain that he had given the gentleman another
